The manufacturer's certificate of origin (MCO), also known as the manufacturer's statement on origin, is a specified document certifying the country of origin of certain goods required for tariff purposes by foreign countries. Sometimes it is necessary to sign the consulate of the country to which it is designated. Proof of origin certifies that the goods are exported from the United States of America to Canada or Mexico or from Canada or Mexico to the United States shall be considered as originating goods for the purpose of preferential tariff treatment under the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). Kit vehicles mco specifically indicate that the vehicle is a glider set or kit vehicle. If the applicant does not have mco, the vehicle must be upgraded as a vehicle titled and registered. Dubbed mco/mso -duplicated copy mco/mso issued by mco/mso is an acceptable proof of ownership. The front of the document shall clearly bear a Duplicate, shall bear the same security features as the original and shall contain identical descriptive information, with the exception of the date of issue, as in the original mco/mso. All discrepancies cancel the duplicate. MSO extensions – any the front of the document must clearly indicate the continuation and shall bear the same security features as the original. The continuation must be used together with the original certificate. The glow of the car image by Steven Husk from Fotolia.com manufacturer's statement of origin, sometimes referred to as the manufacturer's certificate of origin, is the certification of a brand new vehicle by the manufacturer. This is necessary in some countries to register your new vehicle with the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV). However, this is not a federal requirement, so you should first determine whether your state requires it by contacting your local DMV office. Ask the car dealership for a copy of the manufacturer's proof of origin before leaving the sale if you buy the car in person and in your country. Buying a new vehicle from a state other than yours may mean that you must ask the manufacturer to send you a proof of origin. If you are not buying a vehicle but are considering the production of a new motor vehicle, contact the American Association of Motor Administrators (AAMVA). Certification cannot be created yourself – only the manufacturer or dealer of the vehicle can do so. However, you can get help with AAMVA if you find that you are having trouble getting a certificate. If the new vehicle is not sold by a licensed California dealer and an application for registration of a new vehicle (REG 397) has been submitted, all applications for initial registration and/or name of new vehicles and motorcycles shall include a manufacturer's certificate/statement of origin (MCO/MSO). It does not cover a direct import vehicle or a specially constructed (SPCNS) vehicle made in such a way as to resemble a recognised product. See 12. MCO/MSO may be manufactured in a factory, assembly plant or in an establishment authorised by the manufacturer. All producer organisations/producer organisations, except for off-road equipment, should be presented in identical formats and include the following: the name and address of the manufacturer. Make, identification number, type of bodywork, annual model and vehicle series or model name. The date to be handed over from the manufacturer and the signature of the manufacturer's representative (signature stamp acceptable). Mco/MS room redeterminations do not have to be notarised in California, even if it is notarised. While variations are available, MCO/MSO usually is: 7 x 11 size, paper stock sixty (60) pound offset or equivalent durability, and printed safety features that include: Sensitised security paper without added optical bleaches that do not fluoresce under ultraviolet radiation. Engraved border and prismatic rainbow printing with Copy Void Pantograph (the word void appears when copying the document).
